What do I want to learn or understand better?

This was our third sprint and it feels like we are better at working with scrum. We are still split up in front and backend teams. But I feel that I want to learn the backend better. I would like to work more with the backend and the more logical parts of the project. We are also still trying to work more vertical, so I want to improve that. I also want to learn more about estimating the cost of user stories, that is because we can't really finish all the user stories in the sprint backlog in one sprint. So, for the upcoming sprint, I want to be better at estimating the cost of user stories. I think we will need to discuss it in the sprint planning.

How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

I think I can help others in the team with the frontend and the connection with frontend and backend, because I have been working pretty much with that part of the project.

What is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum?

As earlier weeks, I joined my team in the sprint planning, the daily stand-up meetings, sprint review and sprint retrospective. We also had our first stakeholder meeting this sprint. It was good to have that meeting, we got more understanding in what to prioritize.

What is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

I worked much this week with the event cards that we are making. We managed to create the event cards and get the connection from the backend. We finished the user story that we assigned to do.
