What do I want to learn or understand better?

In the first week I have been introduced to the concept of agile software management, more specifically the framework Scrum. I have previously assisted development teams using Scrum at Volvo Cars, so I have a quite good understanding of the framework, but it was good with some repetition. For the next sprint I want to understand even more details of Scrum, and to get a better understanding of software engineering processes that can help us in our project. To accomplish this I should do my own research of the topics at least 4 hours during the next sprint.

How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

Since I have worked with Scrum previously to some degree, I can hopefully help the team get going faster.

What is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum?

During the Minetest exercise my contribution to the team's use of Scrum was to, together with the team, try to get a good understanding of all the steps need to be done according to Scrum. I also stressed the importance of having a good DoD and good communication, as well as helping each other out with task when somebody was finished with their task. For the next sprint I want to ensure that we have discussions and makes decisions in the team, so we can specify a DoD, what tools to use and how the code review checklist should look like.

What is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

I contributed to the drafting of the social contract together with the team. I also initiated contact with an external stakeholder to find a possible development project. For the next sprint I want to support the team in finding a project and to deliver a business model canvas and a mockup.
